

CONTENTS

David L Reifschneider, David J. Stockton, and David W. Wilcox
Econometric models and the monetary policy process	1
John B. Taylor
Econometric models and the monetary policy process
A comment	39
Flint Brayton, Andrew Levin, Ralph Tryon, and John C. Williams
The evolution of macro models at the Federal Reserve Board	43
Peter N. Ireland
A small, structural, quarterly model for monetary policy evaluation	83
Eric M. Leeper
A small, structural, quarterly model for monetary policy evaluation
A comment	109
Jon Faust and Charles H. Whiteman
General-to-specific procedures for fitting a data-admissible theory-inspired, congruent, parsimonious, encompassing, weakly-exogenous, identified, structural model to the DGP:
A translation and critique	121
David F. Hendry
On congruent econometric relations:
A comment	163
Jon Faust and Charles H. Whiteman
Rejoinder to Hendry	191
Jeffrey C. Fuhrer
Towards a compact, empirically-verified rational expectations model for monetary policy analysis	197

Julio J. Rotemberg

Towards a compact, empirically-verified rational expectations model for monetary policy analysis

A comment231

Gregor W. Smith and Stanley E. Zin

Real business-cycle realizations 243

Kevin D. Hoover

Real business-cycle realizations, 1925-1995

A comment281

